

Making ILRI articles, books and chapters open

➤ Retain our rights

Once manuscripts have been accepted by a journal, publishers require authors to sign a Copyright Transfer Agreement. Under ILRI contracts, the intellectual property of information products written by ILRI staff belongs to ILRI. Therefore, any agreements MUST be signed on behalf of ILRI by the Legal Counsel.

Increasingly, publishers will publish our products with open licenses and such options should be negotiated (and paid for if required; most donors allow us to budget such costs into projects).

For books, many publishers recognize that we want to make the full digital product open access through our repository six months after publication, especially where we agree to 'buy back' an agreed number of print copies. This can be negotiated at contract stage and cleared with the Legal Counsel.

Where publishers are reluctant to publish open access, CGIAR recommends that authors use an Author Addendum to ensure we retain key rights to deposit and re-use.

➤ Deposit

As soon as the peer review process has concluded and your article manuscript has been finalized, deposit a copy of the manuscript into CGSpace—ILRI's information products repository.

➤ Share

Promote your published products; use consistent, permanent DOI and CGSpace HANDLE addresses to facilitate discovery and help track attention and citations.

Under the terms of CGIAR and ILRI policies on open access, “Best efforts” shall be used to make all information products—including journal articles, books and chapters—open access, “subject always to the legal rights and legitimate interests of stakeholders and third parties, including intellectual property rights, confidentiality, sensitivity, farmers’ rights and privacy.”

➤ Peer-reviewed journal articles

Should be deposited in a suitable repository and made open access as soon as possible, ideally at the time of publication, and no later than 6 months from the date of publication. Where an author publishes in a closed access journal, he/she shall self-archive in an Open Access repository a digital version of the final accepted manuscript (the “postprint” version).

➤ Books and book chapters

The full digital version of books and book chapters shall be made open access as soon as possible after publication and in any event within 6 months either through self-archiving or other suitable publication arrangements.

Some investors, BMGF for instance, require us to comply with global access provisions and our open access policies are designed to facilitate this.

Making ILRI articles, books and chapters open

Information products repository

<http://cgspace.cgiar.org>

Rights and permissions

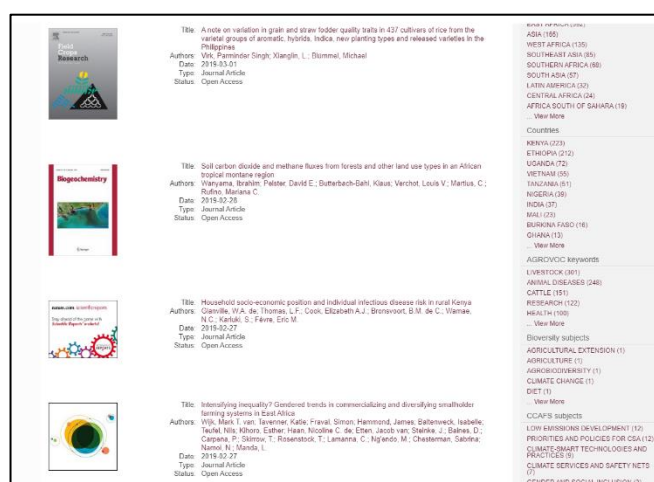

We give all ILRI's information products an open creative commons license—see below and at ilri.org/copyright. This appears on all our reports and publications and web sites; it is the 'ideal' for all articles, books and chapters though in practice a more limited CC license is often the best we can achieve. ILRI's license allows all types of uses, including commercial, on condition that ILRI is properly credited.

This product is copyrighted by the International Livestock Research Institute (ILRI).

It is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 International Licence. Unless otherwise noted, you are free to share (copy and redistribute the material in any medium or format), adapt (remix, transform, and build upon the material) for any purpose, even commercially, under the following conditions:

- ATTRIBUTION. The work must be attributed, but not in any way that suggests endorsement by ILRI or the author(s).
- For any reuse or distribution, the licence terms of this work must be made clear to others.
- Any of the above conditions can be waived if permission is obtained from the copyright holder.
- Nothing in this licence impairs or restricts the author's moral rights.
- Fair dealing and other rights are in no way affected by the above.

Contacts:

Copyrights and licenses: Sheila Wainaina,
s.wainaina@cgiar.org

Repository, open access journals and predatory publishers:

Abenet Yabowork, a.yabowork@cgiar.org

Website: ilri.org/open

